

The Emergency or Disaster Declaration Process

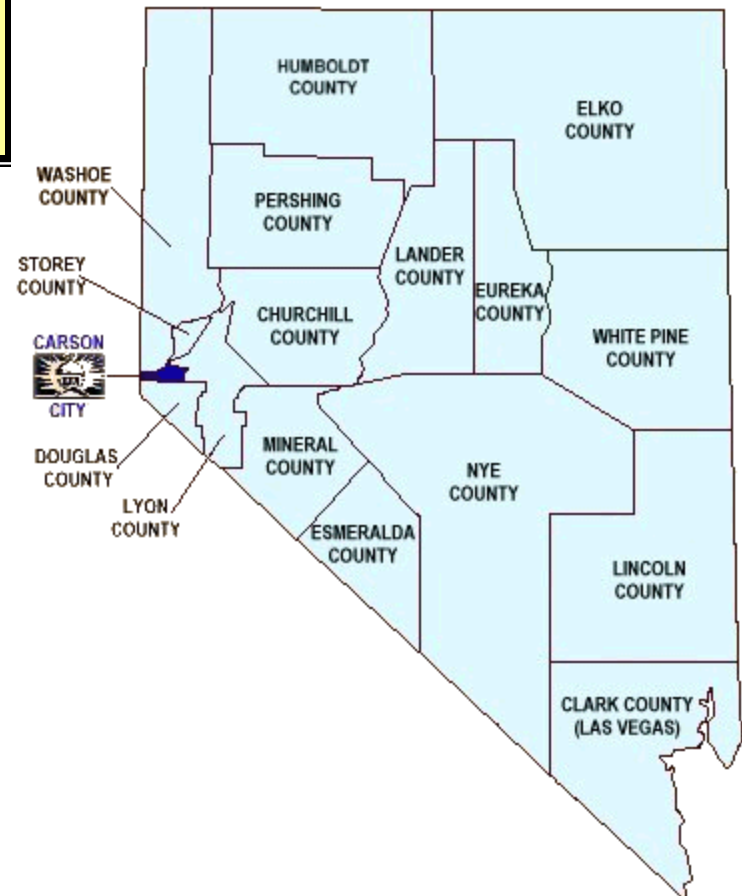

Local Declaration Process

A declaration/resolution is required for inclusion in a Presidential Declaration. When in doubt declare for an emergency/disaster. (Local to County)

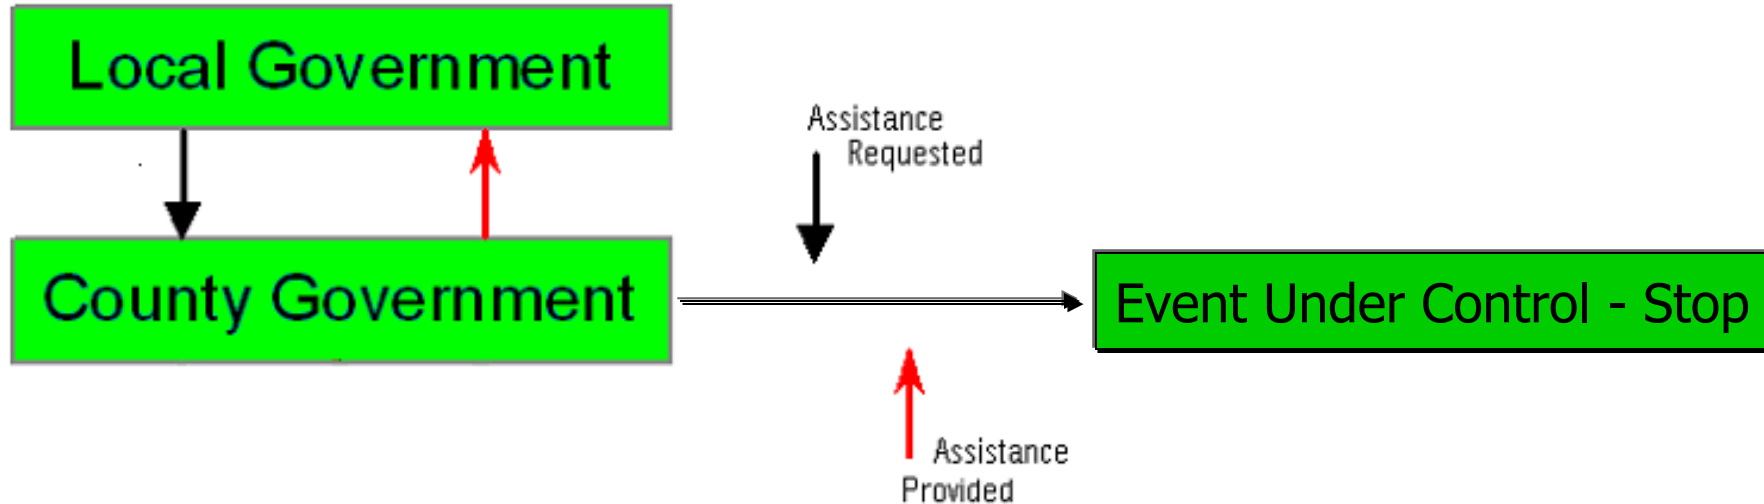

County Government

- Assists local governments
 - Tribe, or cities and county residents
 - Supplemental Funding
 - Equipment
 - Expertise
 - Other resources
 - Nevada Emergency Management Assistance Compact

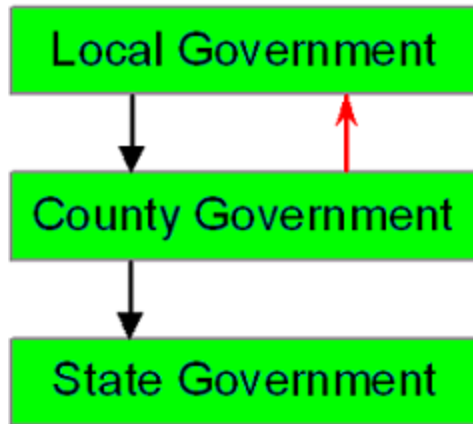

County Government Role

(assists local government)

Then,
if situation dictates, request assistance from the state. A declaration from the county is required.

The Declaration Process in a County Declared Disaster

County provides support to local government

County requests assistance from the State when needs exceed all available local and county resources

While

Local government continues to coordinate and direct all efforts

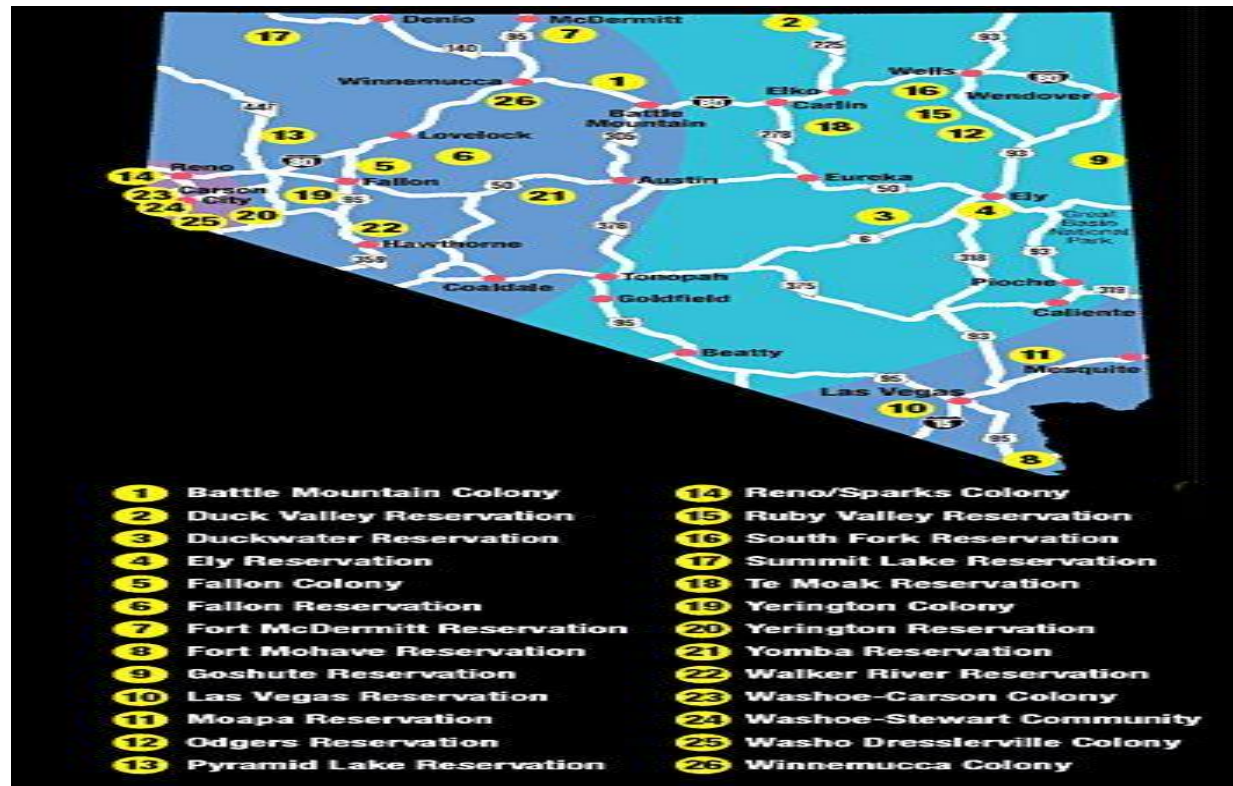

Tribal Declaration

- Tribal nations located within Nevada, are recognized as sovereign nations.

Tribal Declaration

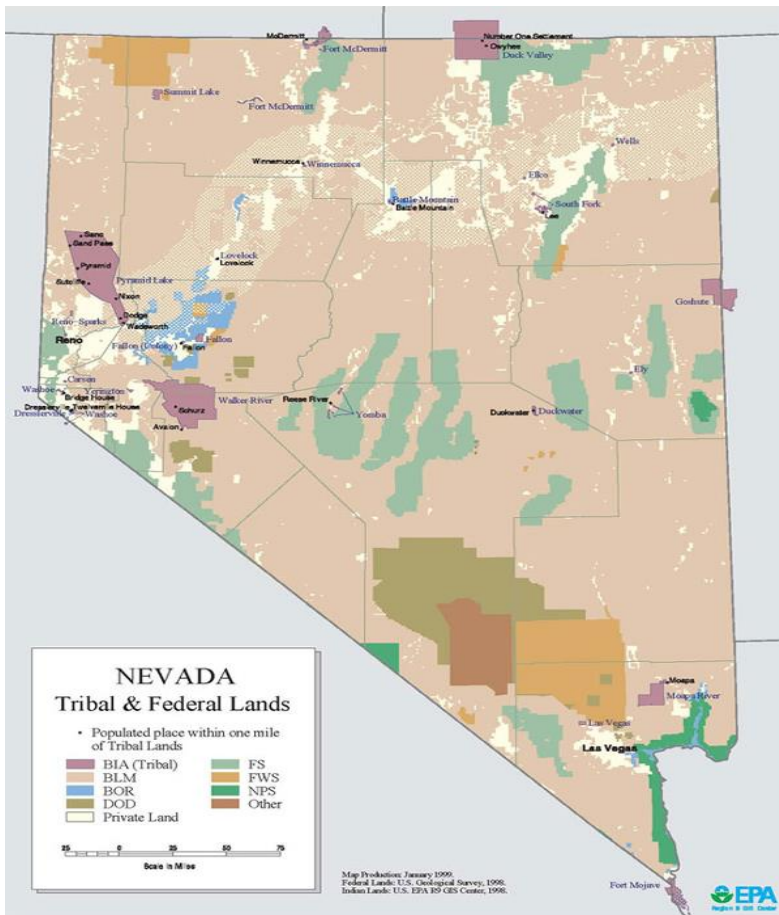

Tribal nations can apply through the county, state, or directly to FEMA.

Tribal Declaration

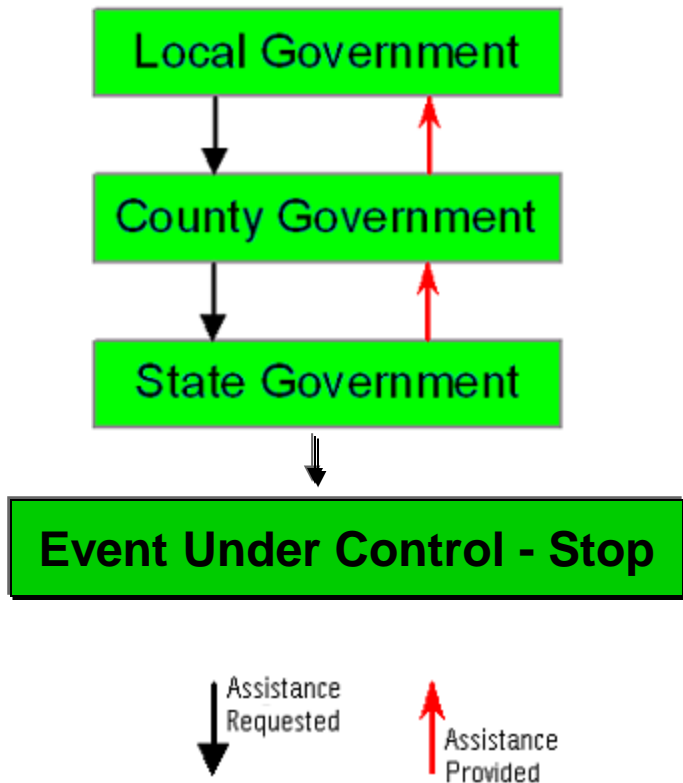

County/state/federal involvement for resolution of the situation requires that the tribal nation request assistance using the same procedures as any other incorporated community within a county

State Government

- Assists county government
- Provides state resources
 - From state cache
 - From contractors
 - National Guard
 - NEMAC
- Requests Presidential Declaration (when necessary)
- Coordinates with FEMA

The Declaration Process in a State Declared Disaster

State declares disaster

State provides support to county & local government

County continues to assist local government

while

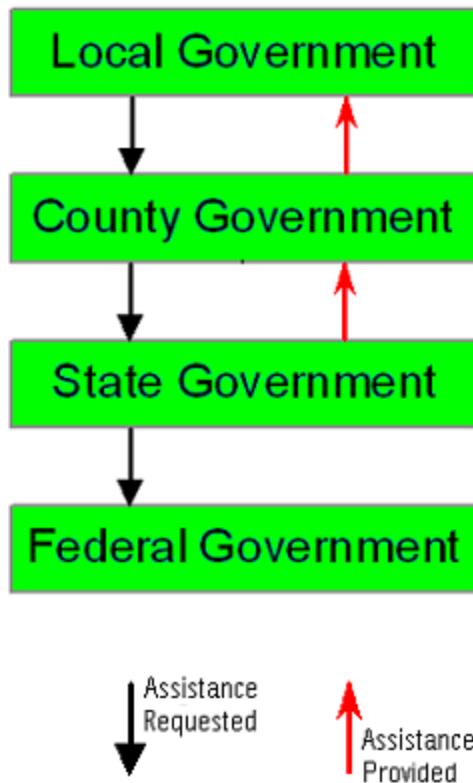

Local government continues to coordinate and direct efforts

Federal Government

- ❑ FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Agency) acts on behalf of the President to provide:
 - ❑ Grants
 - ❑ Other resources from Departments
 - ❑ Federal Agencies support
 - ❑ Military support (Army, Marines, Navy, Air Force)
 - ❑ WMD response teams
 - ❑ Etc.

The Declaration Process in a Federal Declared Disaster

State requests support from FEMA as necessary

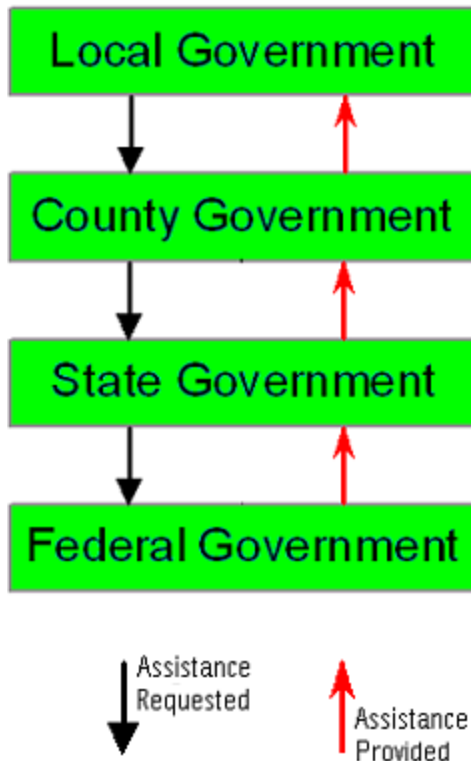

State continues to provide support to county & local government

County continues to assist local government

while

Local government continues to coordinate and direct efforts

The Declaration Process

Federal Government provides assistance

Coordinated through the state,
Coordinated through the county,
to local government

Declaration Pros and Cons

- ❑ FEMA and affiliated agencies will monitor the event through an on-site liaison or through DEM's point of contact
 - ❑ Other federal agencies may provide assistance without a Presidential declaration

 - Without a Presidential declaration, FEMA funding is not available
 - Even with a Presidential declaration, not all programs requested in the declaration may be approved
 - Local government or tribal nation is responsible for all costs of the event
